Advisory Business

Firm Description

Zevenbergen Capital Investments LLC is a SEC registered investment adviser whose primary business is providing investment advisory services through individually- managed, aggressive growth equity portfolios. ZCI also serves as an adviser to two open-end mutual funds: the Zevenbergen Growth Fund and the Zevenbergen Genea Fund (collectively, the “Zevenbergen Funds”). The Zevenbergen Funds are Registered Investment Companies (RIC) organized as a series under a Multiple Series Trust provided and maintained/administered by U.S. Bancorp Fund Services LLC and distributed by Quasar Distributors, LLC.

Zevenbergen Capital Investments LLC is the successor organization to Zevenbergen Capital, Inc. which was established in March 1987.

Principal Owners

ZCI is a Limited Liability Company structured as follows:

Entity	Ownership Units of ZCI	Relationship
evenstar3 inc. ("evenstar")	80%	LLC Member, wholly-owned by Nancy Zevenbergen, ZCI's President, CIO and sole Board member
Virtus Partners, Inc. ("VPI")	20%	LLC Member, wholly-owned by Virtus Investment Partners, Inc. ("VIP" - a public reporting company)

Types of Advisory Services

ZCI provides discretionary investment advisory and portfolio management services, based on client objectives, to individuals, high net worth individuals, public funds, state or municipal government entities, corporations, charitable organizations, investment companies and banking and thrift institutions.

ZCI provides advisory services through individually-managed portfolios using the following strategies:

Growth Equity Strategies:

- Zevenbergen Growth Equity: invests in growth companies with varied capitalization ranges.
- Zevenbergen Genea Growth Equity: exhibits sector concentration, investing in growth companies with primary emphasis in the technology, internet and telecommunications industries.
- Zevenbergen Income Growth: invests primarily in more mature companies with a history of, and expected future, dividend growth.
- NVM: solely targets long-term capital appreciation through investment in non-diversified, highly concentrated positions in growth companies.

Fixed Income:

- ZCI also advises on fixed-income securities as part of a client's overall investment objective, typically selecting investment grade securities with the intent to hold to maturity.

Tailored Relationships

ZCI may elect to provide investment advisory services to fulfill specific client investment objectives that differ from the above-described products. ZCI accepts reasonable limitations or restrictions to such authority from the client. All limitations and restrictions placed on accounts must be presented to ZCI in writing, typically within the investment advisory agreement or similar document.

Investment Advisory Agreement

ZCI enters into an investment advisory agreement ("Agreement") with all clients. At a minimum, the Agreement provides the following:

- Prohibits assignment of the Agreement without client consent.
- Identifies the rate and frequency of investment advisory fees.
- Notes the account and/or beneficial party name and the party from whom ZCI can accept direction regarding the account.
- Describes the services to be rendered, the extent of the firm's discretionary authority over the account and its ability to direct the custodian to that end.
- Discloses that ZCI will not serve as custodian of client assets.
- Makes necessary representations applicable to ERISA accounts.
- Identifies whether client or ZCI is responsible for voting proxies.
- Allows for client to authorize ZCI to directly debit advisory fees from the account or choose to pay fees themselves.

Assets Under Management

ZCI manages client assets on a discretionary basis. As of December 31, 2018, ZCI managed a total of:

Discretionary	$ 2,343,100,000
Non-Discretionary	$ 0
Total	$ 2,343,100,000

	Next $40 Million	0.80%

Zevenbergen Income Growth (Minimum: $500,000)	First $500,000	1.50%
	Remaining Assets Over $500,000	1.00%
Fixed Income	All Assets	1.00%

Description of Fees

ZCI reserves the right to manage accounts that are less than the stated minimum (for example, an individual related to an existing client). Accounts below the minimum will likely pay higher fees than those stated in the above schedule. ZCI also reserves the right to negotiate fees depending on client circumstances (eleemosynary, most favored nations, etc.) and to charge a minimum fee.

ZCI may provide holdings and transaction information for model portfolio(s) to other financial institutions for use in their portfolio management platforms. ZCI receives a fee for providing such advice based upon the assets under management modeled to the strategy at the respective financial institutions. ZCI does not include these assets in its calculation of Assets Under Management section herein. Should ZCI elect to provide advisory services other than those described above, advisory fees are negotiated on a case-by-case basis.

ZCI reserves the right to aggregate client trades among clients with different fee schedules provided each client receives the same per share price on a given trade. Please refer to Order Aggregation within the Brokerage Practices section herein for related policies.

ZCI will not charge a separate investment advisory fee on client assets invested in Proprietary Mutual Funds (those advised or sub-advised by ZCI, including the Zevenbergen Funds) other than the management fees already paid directly to ZCI by these funds.

ZCI may also enter into agreements where the annual amount of its compensation for investment advisory services is predetermined (fixed fees).

Fee Billing

If directed in the Agreement or similar document, ZCI may debit fees directly from the client's account. Please refer to Direct Debit of Fees within the Custody section herein for stated policies.

The calculation of ZCI's advisory fees is determined by the Agreement. Unless directed otherwise in the Agreement or similar document, ZCI's investment advisory fee is based on the value of a client's assets under management on the last day of the accounting quarter. The value of such assets is determined by independent, third-party pricing services or based on prices provided by the custodian for securities where prices are not available from the pricing services. Advisory fees are generally charged in arrears on a quarterly basis. The quarterly fee is pro-rated for accounts opened or closed during the calendar quarter. Unless directed otherwise in the Agreement or similar document, ZCI shall have sole discretion to determine whether fees are prorated to reflect contributions or withdrawals (including but not limited to addition, liquidation or transfer of securities, cash withdrawals or deposits) within the accounting quarter.

Each client portfolio will typically have a single advisory fee rate defined in the Agreement, or similar document. ZCI may apply different rates for each asset class (and/or specific security) held in a client account. If a rate is not identified for a specific security or asset class, ZCI, in its discretion, may determine the rate(s) applied based on the client's situation.

Other Fees

ZCI only receives compensation through advisory fees, but clients may incur fees in addition to the management fee paid ZCI. These fees can include brokerage commissions, custodian fees or other fees. Please refer to the Brokerage Practices section herein for additional information on the brokers selected by ZCI.

On behalf of clients, ZCI may make investments in mutual funds and similar securities (i.e. exchange traded funds, money market mutual funds, ADRs, etc.) which have additional fees imbedded in the price of the respective security.

Performance-Based Fees

ZCI does not currently manage client accounts whereby the firm is compensated based on the investment performance of the account (Performance-Based Fees). Nonetheless, ZCI may choose to enter into performance-based Agreements in the future. The terms of any performance fee will be based upon a negotiated arrangement with the respective client. ZCI anticipates that any such arrangement will also pay “base fees” calculated on the market value of assets managed. ZCI will only enter into performance fee arrangements that comply with the requirements of Rule 205-3 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 or other governing bodies’ requirements.

Managing accounts that pay a performance fee and accounts that pay another type of fee, presents certain potential conflicts of interest in managing these accounts at the same time; that being an incentive to favor accounts from which a performance fee is received. ZCI has developed policies and procedures designed to ensure all clients are treated fairly without influence from performance fees. The Chief Compliance Office reviews these procedures on a regular basis. Please refer to Order Aggregation within the Brokerage Practices section herein.

Types of Clients

Description

ZCI primarily manages accounts for individuals, high net worth individuals, public funds, state or municipal government entities, corporations, charitable organizations, investment companies and banking and thrift institutions.

Minimum Account Size

As outlined in Description of Fees in the Fees and Compensation section herein, ZCI has stated minimum account sizes for each product. ZCI reserves the right to accept accounts below the stated minimum.

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

ZCI’s growth equity investment philosophy and stock selection process is predicated on revenue, cash flow and earnings growth being the essential catalysts of stock price appreciation, combined with a company’s financial flexibility and experienced management offering competitive advantages during market downturns.

ZCI uses fundamental, bottom-up analysis when making investment decisions. Sources of information may include Wall Street research, financial newspapers and magazines, various research materials, company press releases, prospectuses, annual reports and other filings with the SEC, and review of corporate activities. In addition to these sources, ZCI makes use of conferences and other instances to meet with company management, listens to quarterly company conference calls and attends trade and/or industry gatherings to gain further information about portfolio and prospective portfolio companies. ZCI also uses the internet as a source of information, as well as other commercially available services that aggregate information regarding companies and various market statistics.

Investment Strategies

As described in Types of Advisory Services within the Advisory Business section herein, ZCI offers three primary aggressive growth equity products. Each product's investment strategy is capital appreciation characterized by concentrated portfolios with limited income generation and each is generally fully-invested at all times. Zevenbergen Geneva Growth Equity and NVM Portfolios are highly concentrated strategies, present increased risk and volatility and may have greater cash balances on a short-term basis as securities are sold and/or rebalanced. Additionally, ZCI offers the Zevenbergen Income Growth portfolio, designed to provide moderate capital appreciation and income with lower volatility than the above described products.

Risks of Loss and Other Significant Risks

Investments in equities, fixed income securities and any of Zevenbergen Capital's strategies involve the risk of loss of capital that each client should be prepared to bear. Several of the firm's products contain securities issued by high-growth companies which at times can exhibit substantially greater volatility than the stock market as a whole.

Frequency of Trading

ZCI's equity investment strategies involve active investment decisions that may result in frequent trading activity, transaction costs and/or tax consequences. While ZCI makes every effort to manage portfolios in a tax-efficient manner, fundamental investment decisions and performance are the firm's primary focus. Consequently, ZCI may not always manage portfolios in a manner that results in the most favorable tax outcome.

Affiliations

Please refer to Principal Owners in the Advisory Business section herein for a description of ZCI's ownership structure. As described, ZCI is organized as an LLC with two members: evenstar3 inc. ("evenstar") and Virtus Partners, Inc. ("VPI"). VPI is wholly-owned by Virtus Investment Partners, Inc. ("VIP" - a public reporting company). ZCI has the following business relationships with these entities:

ZCI serves as sub-adviser to an open-end mutual fund to which Virtus Fund Advisers, LLC ("VFA" - wholly-owned by VPI) serves as adviser. When appropriate, VFA may recommend investment(s) in this fund to their clients. For its role as sub-adviser, as described herein, ZCI receives a portion of the investment advisory fees paid to VFA.

VIP subscribes to certain third-party information related to performance analytics and peer group rankings. VIP shares certain information with ZCI as permitted by their subscription agreement(s) with these third-parties. Receipt of such information is a benefit to ZCI in that the firm would otherwise have to pay directly for such subscriptions.

VPI, VIP VFA and their affiliates do not exercise control of ZCI as defined in Form ADV Part 1A. Except as disclosed in this section and within Principal Owners in the Advisory Business section herein, ZCI has no other business relationships with evenstar, VPI, VIP, VFA and their affiliates.

Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

ZCI has adopted a Code of Ethics and Personal Trading Policy ("Code of Ethics") which applies to all Access Persons and their Associated Persons (which include an Access Person's spouse, household member(s), minor child(ren), domestic partner or other individuals where the Access Person manages the account or has beneficial interest in the account).

An Access Person is defined as any employee of ZCI (exceptions may include those working on a part-time, temporary or independent contractor basis, unless the positions held are responsible for portfolio management, research or trading) or non-employee director of ZCI's Board.

The Code of Ethics is intended to ensure that the firm's fiduciary responsibility to clients serves as the guiding principle in all its activities. The Code of Ethics helps to clearly set out:

- that ZCI will always place the interests of clients first,
- procedures for personal securities transactions,
- to deter the misuse of material, nonpublic information in securities transactions,
- to establish a commitment by ZCI's entire team to comply with all securities laws and the firm's overarching fiduciary responsibility to clients.

While not comprehensive, the following Code of Ethics inclusions establish a foundation to ensure compliance with the policy's purpose and guiding principles:

- Access Persons must disclose potential conflicts of interest with any private or public entity, shall refrain from making charitable or political contributions for the express purpose of gaining or retaining business and shall limit giving or receiving of gifts, entertainment or favors to only those of nominal value.
- Access and Associated Persons are prohibited from investing in Initial Public Offerings ("IPO"), from profiting on short-term trading, from investing in private placements without prior written approval, from buying or selling securities for their own account ahead of a client, from purchasing securities for a client to protect or improve the security's value already held in their own account, from taking an investment opportunity from a client for their own account or using advance knowledge of securities being considered for client accounts for their personal benefit.
- Purchase and sale of certain securities by Access Persons employed at ZCI and their Associated Persons require pre-clearance and have specified parameters for time of execution to avoid conflicts with client security trades.
- Access Persons are required to disclose all securities holdings and brokerage accounts (both for themselves and Associated Persons), as well as provide quarterly disclosure of all reportable security transactions and an annual list of reportable security holdings for review.
- ZCI has set out sanctions for personal trading violations under the Code of Ethics and a procedure for disgorgement of profits associated with non-compliant trades.
- ZCI's Access and Associated Persons are prohibited from trading a security while in possession of material nonpublic information related to that security.
- The Policy sets out a procedure for reporting Code of Ethics violations to the firm's Chief Compliance Officer or President.
- Access Persons are required to provide an annual acknowledgement of receipt and understanding of the Code of Ethics and quarterly certifications of compliance therewith.

A complete copy of ZCI's Code of Ethics is available upon request.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

ZCI, its Access Persons and/or their Associated Persons may purchase publicly-traded securities which the firm also purchases for client accounts. ZCI, Access and Associated Persons are prohibited from transacting in any security contemplated for purchase in client accounts until the position has been established for clients. ZCI utilizes a third-party software system to implement these restrictions to Access and Associated Persons' personal trading activity (please see Other Brokerage Related Disclosures in the Brokerage Practices section herein).

Upon CCO pre-approval, ZCI and its Access Persons and Associated Persons may invest in private placements that may become public companies. ZCI may purchase shares of these companies for client accounts (once publicly-traded) if the investment is deemed appropriate for client investment objectives. This poses a potential conflict of interest in that ZCI, its Access Persons or Associated Persons (with an ownership interest in the company coming public) may be perceived to benefit from purchases conducted in client accounts. As with all investment decisions made for clients, the decision to purchase such a security will be made only in keeping with the clients' investment objective(s) and the firm's overarching fiduciary duty. As with the purchase of any new security for client accounts (regardless of ZCI's, Access Persons' or Associated Persons' ownership), ZCI and its Access Persons and Associated Persons are prohibited from transacting in the security until the position has been established in client accounts.

ZCI manages accounts of, or related to, employees and/or their family members. These specific accounts are managed in similar strategies to other ZCI client accounts. To mitigate a potential conflict of interest, these accounts are traded with similar client accounts and are reviewed by the Chief Compliance Officer, on a regular basis, to ensure they are not being favored.

ZCI serves as adviser to the Zevenbergen Funds and receives advisory fees paid by these funds (please refer to Firm Description in the Advisory Business section herein). Total fees for the Zevenbergen Funds may be higher than ZCI's typical advisory fees for separately managed client accounts as described in the Fees and Compensation section herein. A complete description of fees and expenses of each Zevenbergen Fund is contained in their prospectuses. Should ZCI purchase shares of the Zevenbergen Funds for clients, the firm will not charge additional advisory fees on assets held in the Zevenbergen Funds (please see the Fees and Compensation section herein). The decision to purchase the Zevenbergen Funds for a client is based on certain client circumstances, including but not limited to: level of client assets, tax status, investment objectives, liquidity needs and the potential fees and expenses (other than advisory fees) related to managing the client's account(s) (please see Other Fees in the Fees and Compensation section herein). Based on these circumstances, ZCI will make every effort to provide the client the most cost-effective investment approach (i.e. exclusively separately managed account, exclusively Zevenbergen Funds, or a combination thereof).

Personal Trading

At all times the following principles shall govern an Access Person's investments (as described in the Code of Ethics). Every ZCI Access Person shall:

- adhere to the highest ethical standards.
- place client interests above personal interests.
- ensure that all personal securities transactions are conducted consistent with this Policy and in such a manner as to avoid any actual or potential conflict of interest or any abuse of an individual's position of trust and responsibility.
- avoid certain types of personal securities transactions deemed to create a conflict of interest.
- not use knowledge of open, executed or pending client portfolio transactions to profit by the market effect of such transactions.
- not take advantage of any investment opportunity belonging to clients.
- conduct all personal securities transactions in a manner consistent with this Policy and with the CFA Institute's Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct.
- embrace the firm's fiduciary responsibility to clients by treating information regarding clients' security holdings and financial circumstances as confidential.
- comply with all Federal securities laws and any laws governing ZCI's actions on behalf of clients.

Brokerage Practices

Selecting Brokerage Firms

The client has the right to specify a broker/dealer through which ZCI will execute securities transactions (as may be allowed by law, e.g. ERISA). In the absence of such direction, ZCI will select brokerage firms that are viewed to be the most competitive in the areas of trade execution, commissions and value of research and services. ZCI believes that broker/dealers should earn fair and reasonable compensation for their services, but where appropriate, ZCI will try to negotiate lower commissions on its clients' behalf.

ZCI endeavors to select those broker/dealers that provide the best services at the lowest commission rates possible. The reasonableness of commissions is based on the broker/dealer's ability to provide professional services, competitive commission rates, research and other services that assist ZCI in providing investment management services to clients. Zevenbergen Capital may, therefore recommend (or use) a broker/dealer who provides useful research and securities transaction services even though a lower commission may be charged by a broker/dealer who offers no research services and minimal securities transaction assistance.

ZCI will refrain from placing any client trades through broker/dealers known to be affiliated with VIP, VPI and/or VFA. This restriction extends to participation in IPOs or secondary offerings where these affiliated broker/dealers serve as part of the underwriting syndicate.

Additionally, in conjunction with ZCI's advisory role for investment companies (mutual funds), the firm will refrain from placing trades with broker/dealers as compensation for their selling of fund shares.

Brokerage and Custodian Recommendations

ZCI may offer recommendations of a broker/dealer that also serves as a custodian, or a bank custodian. ZCI makes every effort to offer such recommendations based on the firm's professional experience with various entities. Such recommendations are typically based on the firm's combined evaluation of best execution, custodial services, client reporting, service orientation and cost (commission) structure.

One of ZCI's recommended broker/dealer custodians is Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (Schwab). Such recommendation is based upon the criteria described above: Schwab's ability to provide quality overall services to clients at a competitive cost structure. ZCI has an agreement in place with Schwab Institutional® Enterprise (a division of Schwab) which identifies services provided to our mutual clients, the terms and conditions of such services and their pricing (commissions). These services are offered to ZCI's mutual clients at reduced costs as a result of the firm's ability to refer or recommend certain amount(s) of clients' assets to Schwab. Our mutual clients benefit from access to additional "institutional" services at rates lower than those offered by Schwab to the general public. Such services that benefit our mutual clients may include access to certain investment products, execution of securities transactions and custody services that might otherwise require higher account minimums.

It is important to note that ZCI may inure certain additional benefits from Schwab as a result of our mutual relationship. Such benefits may include access to educational conferences and events, technology support, compliance and/or legal consulting and publications and conferences related to practice management and succession.

Directed Brokerage

If a client directs ZCI to use a specific broker/dealer for all, or a certain percentage of transactions, ZCI may not be authorized to negotiate commissions and may not be able to obtain volume discounts or best execution. In addition, a disparity in commission charges may exist between clients who direct ZCI to use a specific broker/dealer, clients who do not direct ZCI to use a particular broker/dealer and clients who direct ZCI to use a specific representative within a broker/dealer organization with varied commission structures. Additionally, certain broker/dealers also serving as custodians may apply different commission schedules based on a client's level of assets (tiered commissions) or other unique circumstances. If a client selects a custodian who is also a broker/dealer, ZCI will typically place trades solely with that broker/dealer, unless otherwise directed in writing by the client. Choosing such a custodian may affect best execution.

Best Execution

ZCI has established a Best Execution Committee that meets quarterly to review broker/dealer relationships and their execution of securities transactions. The Best Execution Committee uses a numerical scoring system to assist in an objective evaluation of broker/dealers.

Based on the type of broker/dealer relationship (i.e. research, execution, electronic communications network-ECN, fixed income, traditional soft dollar, client-directed or custodian) ZCI may consider, among other issues, the following criteria in determining the broker/dealer's score: qualitative executions of transactions, commission rate, timeliness of execution, responsiveness, acceptance of trading strategy, value-added research, trade settlement capabilities, access to research analysts, research conferences and company management teams, order-flow, inventory, access to the new-issues market, financial soundness and security-specific market-making capabilities. A minimum numeric score must be achieved on a quarterly basis for ZCI to maintain its trading relationship with brokers. Should a broker/dealer's score fall below the established minimum, the relationship will be suspended (termination of trading through the broker/dealer). The Committee may elect to reactivate a suspended broker relationship provided the broker shows adequate evidence it has remedied the problem which originally resulted in the sub-standard score.

While a numeric benchmark for client-directed brokerage and custodial brokerage arrangements has been established, ZCI may not have the option to suspend trading with such broker/dealers. Where suspending trading is not an option, ZCI will work with the client to determine an appropriate course of action. Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA") clients may be required to provide written documentation supporting any decisions to continue a client-directed trading relationship if best execution is not being achieved. ZCI's fiduciary duty is to plan participants, not the plan sponsor (client); it is the client's responsibility to demonstrate that directed brokerage benefits the participants.

ZCI has established an internal benchmark in evaluating the financial soundness of broker/dealers with which the firm maintains active trading relationships. Generally, for broker/dealers that are privately-held companies, ZCI uses a net capital minimum and evaluates the number on a quarterly basis. If a privately-held broker's net capital falls below the minimum, a review of the broker's financial and operational soundness is conducted, and the broker/dealer is either placed on watch status or the trading relationship is suspended. In either instance, further monitoring may include additional evaluations of net capital and the circumstances surrounding the decline in net capital. For those broker/dealers that are publicly traded or a subsidiary of a publicly-traded company, the company or the parent company's annual equity level will be reviewed. If a client-directed broker's capital level is in question, ZCI will notify the client of any concerns and continue or suspend the broker/dealer relationship at the client's direction.

Soft Dollars

ZCI does not have traditional soft dollar arrangements (the practice of using client commissions as payment for third-party products and services under oral or written arrangements). ZCI uses client commission dollars as payment, in part, for research provided directly by the broker/dealers through which the firm places client trades. The use of client commissions as payment for research provides a benefit to ZCI, because the firm does not have to produce or pay for the research provided. The selection of such broker/dealers, the value of their research and services, and the reasonableness of their commissions is reviewed and monitored by ZCI's Best Execution Committee.

Therefore, ZCI may recommend (or use) a broker/dealer who provides useful research and securities transaction services even though a lower commission may be charged by a broker/dealer who offers no research services and minimal securities transaction assistance.

While the products and services ZCI receives directly benefit clients through the enhancement of the firm's investment process, specific research and services received by ZCI may not always benefit all clients or benefit the clients in any specific trade.

Order Aggregation

To assist the Portfolio Managers in creating similar client portfolios and consistent account management, client portfolios are combined into functional trading groups in ZCI's portfolio accounting system and trade order management system. These groups are based on several criteria, including but not limited to:

- ZCI Product/Strategy Implemented
- Portfolio Size
- Client's Tax Status
- Client Broker Direction (where applicable)

ZCI may, but is not obligated to, block trades where possible and when advantageous to clients. Blocked trades facilitate trading of the same security for multiple clients' accounts so long as the execution price is the same for all accounts included in any such block. Block trading allows Zevenbergen Capital to execute equity trades in a more effective manner and may reduce overall trading costs to clients. As described, trade orders are generated for either an individual portfolio or for a group of portfolios (blocked trades). Generally, trades are worked in the order received by ZCI's Trading Associate. When trades are generated for a group of portfolios, it is possible that multiple brokers must be involved for execution of the entire trade. In this instance, ZCI works the trade in the manner expected to have the least impact on the price of the security.

Initial Public Offerings (IPOs)

As part of ZCI's investment process, the firm researches IPOs for investment opportunities and occasionally ZCI purchases shares of IPOs for client accounts. Certain IPOs present the opportunity for considerable gain, therefore their allocation, should ZCI be able to obtain them on clients' behalf, can present a conflict of interest among clients. ZCI has written policies and procedures in place to ensure that all clients are treated fairly in the allocation of IPOs. ZCI is limited to allocating IPOs only to those clients eligible under FINRA Rules 5130 and 5131 (and certification to ZCI as required) or are exempt from its provisions.

Cross Transactions

ZCI does not conduct either agency or principal cross transactions in client accounts. Under certain circumstances it may be necessary for ZCI to place trades on opposite sides for the same security on the same day for two or more client accounts. In these instances, ZCI will make every effort to place these trades with different brokers to avoid the impression that they were conducted as an agency cross transaction.

Trade Errors

ZCI defines a trading error as a monetary loss to a client due to an employee's actions or system errors. At the time the error is discovered, ZCI will determine the course of action that maximizes the financial gain (minimizes loss) to the client(s) for which the trade was intended. If necessary, the client may be contacted for further direction. ZCI will then direct the broker/dealer to take corrective action. If the corrective action results in a monetary loss to a client(s), ZCI will reimburse the client directly. Additionally, material losses absorbed by a broker/dealer on a client's behalf will be reimbursed by ZCI to the broker dealer with a hard-dollar check.

Other Brokerage Related Disclosures

ZCI utilizes personal trading and compliance management software provided by Schwab Compliance Technologies, Inc. ("SCT" - a division of Schwab). ZCI receives a discounted price on the software based upon ZCI's employees' election to use Schwab for their personal trading account(s) and is in no way related to ZCI's client accounts at Schwab.

Review of Accounts

Periodic Reviews

Personal, formal reviews are offered at least annually for all accounts. Accounts are reviewed within the context of client objectives and constraints, at least quarterly. Further reviews may be conducted at the request of the client precipitated by certain conditions including, but not limited to, change in investment objectives. Accounts are monitored on a daily basis by ZCI's Portfolio Managers, with the exception of portfolios that may be too small for continuous management or portfolios consisting of securities not requiring continual monitoring. These accounts are reviewed by the Portfolio Managers on a quarterly basis.

Reviews are conducted by:

- Nancy A. Zevenbergen, CFA, CIC, President, Chief Inv. Officer, Portfolio Manager
- Leslie C. Tubbs, CFA, CIC, Managing Director, Portfolio Manager
- D. Brooke de Boutray, CFA, CIC, Managing Director, Portfolio Manager
- Herbert W. Albin, Managing Director, Investment Officer
- Elise C. Foley, Managing Director, Investment Officer
- Joseph E. Dennison, CFA, Portfolio Manager
- Anthony R. Zackery, CFA, Portfolio Manager

Regular Reports

Reports stating market value, assets held and a transaction summary are provided to the client at least quarterly by the client's custodian bank or broker/dealer. Generally, ZCI provides clients quarterly reports for each account over which the firm has investment discretion. The reports may include a statement of assets, account performance and a newsletter. An invoice (or invoice copy) for investment management fees may be mailed separately or posted on its client reporting website. ZCI reserves the right to provide quarterly client reporting on-line, with client consent.

Client Referrals and Other Compensation

ZCI does not have agreements in place whereby the firm compensates any parties or receives compensation from any party for client referrals.

Custody

ZCI is not a broker-dealer or custodian and does not take possession of client assets. All client assets are held with a qualified custodian independent of ZCI.

Account Statements

Each custodian issues statements to the client at least quarterly (generally monthly). Account statements provided by the qualified custodian should be carefully reviewed and compared to information received by the client quarterly from ZCI.

Direct Debit of Fees

ZCI is deemed to have custody of its clients' assets as defined by the Custody Rule (Rule 206(4)-2 of The Investment Advisers Act of 1940) only in the respect that the firm has permission from some clients to direct their custodian to automatically debit investment advisory fees from their accounts for payment to ZCI. ZCI's client advisory accounts (including those for which ZCI directly debits fees) are maintained at qualified custodians. Although ZCI is deemed to have custody under the Custody Rule (as described above), the firm does not serve as custodian nor does the firm take physical possession of client assets. ZCI has policies and procedures in place to ensure fees are calculated in accordance with the Agreement. Please refer to Fee Billing within the Fees and Compensation section herein for additional information regarding direct debit of fees.

Third-Party Asset Transfers

ZCI will facilitate transfers to client's same name accounts at other qualified financial institutions (such as a bank checking account), however ZCI cannot facilitate transfers directly from client accounts to third-party accounts (an account in a name other than the client's name for the account ZCI manages). Should a client anticipate the need to transfer assets to a third-party, we ask they contact ZCI as soon as possible as extra time may be required for this type of transfer.

Custody by Related Parties

No related party serves as custodian to client accounts.

Investment Discretion

Discretionary Authority

ZCI manages assets on a fully-discretionary basis, determining appropriate securities and amounts of securities to be purchased and sold for client accounts without specific client consent, but always with consideration of client investment objectives. However, there may be certain instances where ZCI will place trades at the request of a client on a non-discretionary basis.

Security holdings, security weights within a portfolio and/or portfolio composition may vary among client accounts as a result of several factors, including:

- The client's selection for their portfolio to be managed in a specific ZCI investment product.
- Account size.
- Tax considerations.
- Liquidity needs.
- Trading costs.
- Investment time horizon.
- Designated investment constraints.
- Degree of risk tolerance.
- The Portfolio Managers' purchase of specific securities held in other ZCI investment products on opportunistic security price changes.

Additionally, ZCI requests notification in writing of any specific client investment restrictions.

Attorney-In-Fact

ZCI is appointed as client's agent and attorney-in-fact for the purpose of placing trades on the client's behalf.

Voting Client Securities

Proxy Voting

In keeping with its investment advisory services and to uphold its fiduciary obligation, ZCI will vote proxy material on behalf of those clients that direct the firm to do so. ZCI maintains written Proxy Voting Policy and Proxy Voting Guidelines, which are used to determine how to vote. The following are key guiding principles of ZCI's Proxy Voting Policy:

- Consider only the best interests of the fiduciary accounts' beneficiaries.
- Consider economic and ethical implications in determining the best interests of the beneficiaries.
- Base the decision on how to vote using reasonable skill and care in determining the issues involved.
- Vote proxies at the written request of a client (as may be allowed), should their specific choice of votes differ from the way ZCI would vote under its own Proxy Voting Guidelines.
- Resolve material conflicts of interest in the best interest of clients.
- Vote on every proxy issue.
- Make every effort to vote proxies for all shares unless voting responsibility has been retained by the client or securities are on loan.
- Vote proxies of ERISA accounts with duty of loyalty, prudence, compliance with the plan, as well as a duty to avoid prohibited transactions.

The policy also outlines procedures on how ZCI identifies and deals with conflicts of interest to include following an independent third-party's advice on voting proxy issues, as well as required recordkeeping of proxy voting history for clients.

Any client may elect to retain proxy voting authority. Should they choose to do so, they will receive proxy material directly from the transfer agent and/or custodian and will be responsible for the respective votes.

A copy of ZCI's Proxy Voting Policy and Proxy Voting Guidelines is available upon request. Additionally, ZCI maintains a record of votes cast on the client's behalf which is available upon the client's request.

Class Action Litigation

While Zevenbergen Capital takes its fiduciary obligation seriously, the firm does not believe the contractual authority it is granted by clients extends to representing them in legal actions such as class action litigation. As a result, ZCI does not file class action litigation claims on behalf of clients.

In ZCI's role as investment adviser, the firm often receives class action information intended for clients (both current and former). ZCI has established procedures regarding the receipt, processing and forwarding of various notifications related to class action litigation (i.e. requests to be named as plaintiff, notices of pendency and proof of claim and release forms) for both current and former clients.

Generally, ZCI works directly with each litigation claims administrator to provide the information necessary for the claims administrator to contact current and/or past clients that may be a member of the class.

A copy of ZCI's Class Action Litigation Policy and Procedures is available upon request.

Financial Information

ZCI does not require or solicit prepayment of fees of any amount.

ZCI is not currently nor has it been in, a financially precarious situation, or subject to a bankruptcy petition.

Additional Information

Client Investor Profile

ZCI utilizes an Investor Profile ("Profile") designed to capture client information necessary for ZCI to provide advisory services. Should the document require a material change, ZCI will update and deliver the Profile to the client.

ERISA Related Disclosures

ZCI serves as adviser to clients covered by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) and therefore also serves as a fiduciary as therein defined. Other than advisory fees received for the firm's services, ZCI receives no direct compensation from any clients (including ERISA accounts). ZCI may receive indirect compensation (as defined by ERISA) from third-parties (including, but not limited to broker/dealers, consultants, vendors/service providers) as a result of advisory services provided. In addition to research received from broker/dealers with whom the firm places client trades (please refer to Soft Dollars within the Brokerage Practices section herein), indirect compensation may also come in the form of gifts and entertainment received by the firm or its employees. ZCI's Code of Ethics and Personal Trading Policy only allows the firm and its employees to accept gifts and entertainment of nominal value and has procedures in place for monitoring all such activity.
